The Class Challenge

The Quaker Foundation invites the graduating classes of New Philadelphia High School to be a part of an exciting concept as we ask our alumni, individually and collectively, to accept The Class Challenge.

This concept was initially presented to class reunion committees in 1994. The Class Challenge invites each alumni class group to raise funds through various projects or donations from classmates to total their class year in dollars. For example, the Class of 1954 was challenged to raise $1,954.00. Several classes have included the challenge concept in their reunion mailings, and have asked individual class members to send one cent for each digit in their class year...which translates to $19.54 in the above example.

Challenge contributions received by the Quaker Foundation are used to support the goals of the organization, including student scholarships, classroom grants, and The Quaker Pride newsletter.

All contributions made by individual class members and class groups must state that the contribution is for The Class Challenge and the year of graduation in order to be counted toward the Challenge. Further optional designations may specify where the challenge donation is to be used.

Current Class Challenge totals can be found on our web page by clicking on the Class Information link under the NPHS Alumni menu at www.quakerfoundation.org

Individual and group donations to The Class Challenge may be mailed to the following address.
